Forecast For Northern Ireland
Issued by Met Office Aberdeen
at 0400 on Thursday 20 May 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Wet and windy.

Today:
A cloudy day with spells of rain. The rain will be most persistent and heavy at times over County Down. A cool day with fresh to strong southeasterly winds, gales possible along the Antrim coast.. Maximum temperature 12 deg C (54 deg F).

Tonight:
It will continue cloudy overnight with further rain. Still some heavier outbreaks at first tonight then the rain becoming lighter, more patchy by morning. Fresh northeasterly winds. Minimum temperature 7 deg C (45 deg F).

Friday:
Cloudy morning but the rain mostly dying out, leaving a drier afternoon and becoming a little brighter. Fresh northerly winds. Maximum temperature 13 deg C (55 deg F).

Outlook for Saturday to Monday:
Mainly dry on Saturday with some sunshine and a few showers. Cloudier on Sunday with outbreaks of rain, then drier, brighter weather returning on Monday.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.